Permanent Residence Approved!

Our client came to the United States several years ago on a temporary work visa. During his stay he met his current wife, a US citizen, whom he married and started a family with. Despite his family ties in the United States, Juan faced the possibility of having to return to his home country when his work visa expired. Our client decided to seek legal help and contacted us. We worked with the couple to file an immigrant visa petition for the husband of a US citizen. We guide them through the entire process, from document collection to the interview at the embassy. Ultimately, our client received his permanent resident card, allowing him to remain in the United States with his wife and children.

Federal Court Maintains Humanitarian Parole

A Federal Court maintains President Joe Biden's humanitarian parole that offers immigrants opportunities to remain in the United States for humanitarian reasons. The humanitarian parole initiative is a key element of the Biden administration's immigration strategy.

This immigration policy applies to immigrants from countries such as Venezuela, Nicaragua, Cuba and Haiti. To participate, immigrants must fill out an online application, find a financial sponsor in the United States and arrive by plane.

Approved people receive a stay of two years and are eligible for work permits. This process has facilitated family reunifications and allowed immigrants to enter the workforce, and many have quickly found success in their new communities. If you have questions or queries about this and other immigration issues, contact us for more information.

Can I Get My Papers Without Leaving The Country?

In order to settle within the American territory, certain factors must be met. Mainly they are the following:

Having entered with a permit or visa (legally) or having married an American citizen, this is the most common way.

There are visa options for crime victims that allow you to settle without leaving, some are the Vawa, T Visa, U Visa and also asylum.

Another way to arrange papers is through American citizen children, but here it is necessary to specify that the person must not have any other immigration violation, because otherwise the process would be complicated.

Papers can also be arranged through law 245-1, only for people who are within the eligibility. Here it does not matter which family member submits the request, any family member can do so. Another option to arrange papers is through an American citizen wife or husband or an American citizen child who in turn belong to the military or are veterans.
